The Ford Motor Company saluted its 50th anniversary the other night with the presentation of the two-hour The American Road program over the combined NBC and CBS networks. If television produces even a few shows like it in the next 50 years, it will have established itself solidly as the greatest medium of entertainment and communications of all time.

It is our business to write about television and, by and large, we speak well of it. But there are few times when you can throw your hat in the air, shout "Bravo," and go around beaming with pride that you have some slight connection with the television industry. The Ford Company, Producer Leland Hayward and a fine cast provided that opportunity.

The Ford Motor Company spent an estimated $500,000 to stage the show, but the same amount of money could have resulted in a dull potpourri of name talent. Instead, it was a thrilling, moving and inspiring experience. Hayward, experienced showman that he is, blended the ingredients with a master hand, building to the entertainment peak with the duet of Ethel Merman and Mary Martin and ending with the inspiring words of Henry Ford, 2d.

in songs, dances, dramatic sketches and film clips it traced the last 50 years—not of the Ford Company—but of the Republic. There was no commercial, yet the Ford Company must have reaped greater appreciation from the public than the strongest sales message could have yielded.

There were names—Crosby, Sinatra, Vallee, Fisher, Wally Cox, Marian Anderson, and many others. But the show was more than names, and more than money. We think it was summed up when Kukla asked Ollie: "I wonder when television will grow up?"

"Maybe," said Ollie, "it did tonight."
Producer WALT FRAMER threatening legal action against NBC, on the grounds that the network's new On Your Account show is too similar to his Strike It Rich . . . MARGARET TRUMAN signed for her third season as a guest star on NBC shows. Network is also considering starring her in a show of her own.

CBS will use a long-distance split-screen to reunite ARTHUR GODFREY with his "Friends," when GODFREY returns to the air. Recuperating at his Virginia farm, ARTHUR will be seen on one-half of the screen, while his regular cast members, performing in the New York studios, will be on the other half.

DICK POWELL may make his TV debut July 19 as guest emcee on Toast of the Town. ED SULLIVAN has decided to extend his vacation to five weeks and has signed GLORIA SWANSON to substitute for him on Toast July 12. ED, incidentally, is vacationing in Hollywood instead of Europe so that he can visit his daughter and son-in-law, the latter a Navy ensign home on leave from the Pacific.

With Cavalcade of America switching to ABC in the fall, Music Hall, starring ROBERT RUSSELL BENNETT, moves into the time formerly occupied by Cavalcade on NBC. It will alternate weekly with the PATTI PAGE show. GUY MITCHELL repeats as guest star with PATTI July 15 . . . Victory at Sea telefilm will be re-issued to local TV stations in the fall.

GREER GARSON expected to break into TV with her own show as soon as her M-G-M movie contract expires . . . It now comes out that those French lessons WALLY COX was taking for his trip to Europe this summer were in earnest. TV's Mr. Peepers will do a series of personal appearances in France, singing his unique songs in French.

LEE TRACY has had his contract to play Martin Kane extended another 13 weeks, but it's rumored that there may be a new actor in the private-eye role after August 30 . . . The top collegiate football game played each Saturday will be seen on TV during the following week this fall, with plans set for another season's filming of All American Game of the Week.

PAUL McGrath, veteran Broadway actor, signed to narrate the Inner Sanctum telefims which NBC is producing in the East for syndication to local stations . . . TIM HOLT, cowboy star, starring in another eastern telefilm series, being produced in cooperation with the National Rifle Association.

PSYCHIATRISTS have a phrase for it. They call it "free association," defined as saying one word and then uttering whatever that word conjures up in your mind.

Say Eddie Cantor, and what do you think of? A dancing, singing, big-eyed comic? Father of five daughters, who for years joked about wanting a son? Philanthropist who spares neither his money nor himself to make this a better world in which to live?

You’re right on all scores, and it was this great generosity of Eddie Cantor’s which caused his heart attack last September.

“Don’t blame it on television!” Ed- die says vociferously. “Certainly TV is rough, but what branch of show business isn’t?”

Entertaining Is Rough

If you’re going to delve into every facet of entertainment, Cantor is the man to guide you. Vaudeville was rough, too, and being stranded in one-horse towns wasn’t any entertainer’s idea of a picnic. Movies aren’t the easiest way in the world to earn a living, either. And the relentless clock in radio glides on, whether you’re finished with the sock comedy routine, or no. So, it can be assumed if you, and the public, decide that you’re to be a star, you have to pay the penalty in health. Either that, or guard your health more closely.

Eddie Cantor isn’t being exactly miserly with his health these days, but neither is he regarding his well-being as something due him. Cantor takes with deep humility the thousands of phone calls and letters, proof that people all over this country were praying for his recovery. Among his prized possessions is a letter from President Dwight Eisenhower, cautioning him to take care, since he is so valuable to his country.

Certainly TV is a grind, and you needn’t be a star to appreciate this. All you need do is attend one program and watch the strain under which the actors are working. Read any Hollywood or New York gossip column almost any day and see who’s turning down shows and taking rests on doctor’s orders.

Eddie Cantor faced a decision. As he puts it, “I could either continue knocking myself out as I had been doing, and work another few months. Or I could live my new life and take care of myself.”

Cantor’s new life can be summed up in a tiny gold medallion which his daughter, Marjorie, gave him when he was discharged from the hospital.

The medallion is round and Cantor always wears it on his key ring. On one side, in large letters, it says: “No.” On the reverse side are the words: “Eating, Emotion, Excitement.” Everytime the medallion is turned, it gives Eddie the right advice.

This probably illustrates Eddie Can- tor’s new-found philosophy better than anything else.
“If I gain an extra pound, I take it off. Excess weight is as unhealthy as too much drinking or too much smoking. And I relax more. I have to,” he explains. It is obvious that a man as high-strung as Cantor must find it difficult to relax under any circumstances. His mind is always working, thinking, planning, for himself, and for others. As Cantor sits quietly and talks, his eyes move constantly, expressing his thoughts as adequately as his words.

He Rests Frequently

“When we’re rehearsing for the television show, I eat lunch alone and lie down for a half hour—no matter what’s happening. After dinner I excuse myself again and lie down for 45 minutes or so.

I’m not jumping around the stage any more. When a routine lends itself to a stop-and-go kinescope method, we do this and I have another few minutes when I can relax.

“I’d far rather settle for a half a loaf than gorging a few more months, and then rocking on the front porch the rest of my life.”

It’s plain to see that Cantor considers television the most important phase of his professional life to date.

Appreciates an Invitation

“Where else,” says he, “can you meet so many people, be invited into their homes as a welcome guest?

“You know when I was on radio, I was heard by more people in this country than any other entertainer. But television is even more exciting. With TV you are there, you are talking with the people face to face. And then, when they invite you back weekly, this is high praise.”

There you have the reason why Eddie Cantor is taking his television “sitting down,” these days. He wants to be invited back to your house, and feel well enough to accept the invitation. Other TV stars whose hearts are jumping a little too rapidly might take a tip from this, as well as other persons who haven’t learned that life is worth living at a slower pace.

Eddie Cantor: a design for longer life.
BARBERSHOP harmony, a strictly male enterprise in an all-male domain, has been infiltrated successfully by the Chordettes, four enterprise young women who meet all the unofficial requirements of barbershoppers but the one of sex. They sing without accompaniment and they sing chords in place of a standard harmony.

Before and since they met up with another American institution known as Arthur Godfrey, the Chordettes were the unofficial mascots of The Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America. This organization, over 600 chapters strong, will pack a house anywhere, anytime. Although the SPEBSQA shuns female talent, the girls got a foothold because one member of the troupe, Virginia Osborn, is the daughter of a one-time president of the organization. Back in Sheboygan, Wis., when they were singing “purely for the fun of it,” he helped them develop their style and launch a career. Carol Hagedorn, who sings the female equivalent of baritone, says they were invited to join the Sweet Adelines, the feminine world’s answer to the SPEBSQA, but thought if they did, they would be just another girl quartet. They preferred being a novelty on the men’s shows.

By 1949, the four original members of the troupe, Carol Hagedorn, Virginia Osborn, Dottie Schwartz, and Janet Ertel had developed enough confidence and style to try for Godfrey’s Talent Scouts. They won first place and an invitation to appear regularly on the show Godfrey and Friends.

Last January, Dottie, a mother-to-be, left the show to join her husband, Bill Schwartz, in Sheboygan, and begin raising a family. Since then, she has had a baby boy. She was replaced by Lynn Evans, a girl “barbershopper” from Youngstown, O.

Abruptly, last March, the Chordettes left the show. The Godfrey office wasn’t telling why. Neither were the girls, who say, with studied voices, “We wanted to do other things.” Letters from viewers poured into CBS and one group of fans, truck drivers at General Motors, rounded up pages of names on a petition to try to bring the girls back on the show. The first the girls heard of this was when they accidentally met a signer of the petition.

Jinnie (Virginia), has a particular reason for being friendly with Godfrey. Her husband is Tom Lockard, one of The Mariners, whom she met on the show. Carol is married to Bob Bushman, the brother of Janet Ertel.

A close-knit group, all four of them appear unhappy whenever their reason for leaving the Godfrey show is raised. Janet says, “It had nothing to do with my divorce.” But she adds, “I guess I’m not smart enough to know whether to refute the rumors or just let them die and hope people will forget.” Carol says, “It was an unhappy complicated situation. Can’t we leave it at that?” Jinnie says, “It wasn’t any one thing. It was an accumulation of lots of little things.”

Whatever the reason, the girls are decidedly happier since they’ve left the Godfrey organization. Last year, they sang on radio with the Robert Q. Lewis show and plans are being made to bring them back this fall, possibly on TV. They’re booked steadily in state fairs, festivals and through the SPEBQSA. This spring, they appeared at the Holland, Mich., Tulip Festival and this summer they will sing at the Chicago Music Festival. They’ve made three record albums for Columbia and plan more in the future. This fall, they will start singing in night clubs.

Life without Godfrey has been calmer. Jinnie says, “We’re a funny outfit. We’re not go-getters. Nice things just happened to us. We sort of drift with the tide and things turn up.”

With the exception of Jinnie, the girls are married to non-professionals. And all but Carol, a bride of less than a year, have children.

Working for Godfrey was more of a grind than the girls dreamed. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday were taken up with rehearsals. Thursday afternoon they had skating lessons and Friday was swimming day. “It got to the point where singing wasn’t fun any more,” Jinnie says.

The girls think of themselves as being "a little bit hammy," but "not hammy enough" to be real extroverts. They think the real reason they started the quartet was because they were afraid to sing alone. Godfrey insisted they sometimes sing solo.

Although Godfrey gave their careers a "Cinderella" twist, the girls think nothing could be easier than what they’re doing now. “We get on a train, go to a town, sing for friends and go home—fini.” Janet says. “We sing as we like, and our fans like us for it.”
ACCORDING to theatrical tradition, every comedian dreams of playing Hamlet. Jackie Gleason, star of his own CBS comedy show, not only realized this dream of playing a serious part, but literally “knocked them dead” in his appearance in the title role of Studio One’s “The Laugh Maker.”

One normally acid New York critic began his review with “Hooray for Jackie.” The sound Variety review was enthusiastic. Public response was among the greatest in the history of Studio One productions. Gleason not only played with sympathy and force the role of the top-flight comic who suffers his offstage heartaches, he apparently convinced millions of viewers that this was his own life story.

Relaxing at his Sands Point, L.I., home, Jackie was cheerful over the success of his dramatic debut. But he scoffed at the idea that the role of the slapstick comedian who drove himself and his staff to desperation was just a case of Gleason playing Gleason.

“I’m much worse than that guy,” he said, grinning.

Then, lest the joke be misunderstood, he added: “I’m not really like that. Ask any of the people I work with.”

First Serious Role

Gleason said that he had once played a straight part, as “Elmer the Great” in summer stock, but that the Studio One appearance was his first serious role. He played a brooding, introspective comedian, who suffered when his material failed to get laughs, and who twisted and distorted the lives of people about him. Art Carney, of his comedy show cast, played the principal supporting role.

Jackie was asked if comics did feel a pang when a joke failed to raise a laugh. “Well, you do when you start,” he said. "But after awhile, you get to be a pro and take these things in your stride."

Gleason said he had rejected several Studio One scripts, before deciding to do "The Laugh Maker." He suggested only minor script changes, "usually to make it sound more like the way I talk." He was impressed by the amount of work involved.

"I rehearsed seven days from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.," he recalled, "with only Saturday off to rehearse my own comedy show. That took me two hours."

Jackie said he had no trouble remembering his lines. "I never do have trouble. I guess I'm lucky." He said he found playing serious drama little different from playing comedy.

"In comedy, you overplay and exaggerate," he explained. "In a serious show, you have to underplay and be a little closer to real life."

He has been asked to appear in several Studio One productions for next year and has had other offers of serious roles in dramatic shows.

As for money, it was practically art for art's sake. "It was short dough," said Gleason, who draws about $12,500 for each Saturday night stint. He contributed the Studio One fee, reportedly $2000, to the Damon Runyon fund.

The play was by A. J. Russell and it was directed by Paul Nickell. Fletcher Markle, Studio One producer, was enthusiastic about Gleason's showing. "He's just as talented an actor as he is a comedian," Markle said. "He was a dream to work with and he was responsible for the whole success of the show."

A few weeks later, the critics again were cheering Gleason, this time for the success of Tawny, an original symphony in ballet, for which he wrote the score and June Taylor ex-

No baggy-pants routines: Gleason and Art Carney won praise of critics and public.
You Too Can Speak DRAGNET

Surprise Your Friends! Understand Jack Webb!

YOU'VE heard of a French-English dictionary? A Spanish-English dictionary? Here, as a TV GUIDE public service, is a Dragnet-English dictionary.

Every viewer of the popular NBC detective show will be interested in knowing what Jack Webb means when he mutters: "We thought he was an ordinary 4127A LAMC without a package, but the make showed the caper was a 211, a carry away. When R and I checked, the FBI kickback had him a muscle-happy big time."

But the serious student of Dragnetese, a language spoken by some TV actors and the Los Angeles Police Department, will use this dictionary to help him become a well-rounded Dragnet. The secret is all in the sound of the words and your facial expression. For practice, dip your face in paste (flour and water will do) and stand in front of a mirror while you utter the Dragnet words in perfect monotone.

UNA MERKEL forseakes retirement for a featured role in Vanity and Mrs. Fair situation comedy. HARRY BABBITT, formerly KAY KYSER's vocalist, will emcee NBC's Glamour Gal. LEE BOWMAN was flown here from Manhattan by CBS to test for the lead in Professional Father. GROUCHO MARX is deliberating a trip to Israel this summer, if his work schedule permits. When ALLAN JONES returns from European singing engagements in September, he and wife IRENE HERVEY will make a test five-day-a-week daytime show for NBC. BOB CROSBY, too, will star in a test daytime program for CBS from here.

HOAGY CARMICHAEL won't host the All-Star Review next autumn since he spurns work outside of Hollywood; current plan is for him to star in his own program, emanating locally. ABBOTT and COSTELLO will do six Comedy Hours next year, according to present schedule.

RED SKELETON's pact with CBS for next year stipulates part of his shows will be filmed. KEN MURRAY has completed three of his The Marshal's Daughter telefilms but they'll not be seen until early next year after same-titled movie has made the rounds. Originally slated for CBS, JACK SMITH's show has switched to NBC in the choice spot between GROUCHO MARX and Dragnet; then it shifts to CBS, probably in the autumn.

LUCILLE BALL and DESI ARNAZ were offered a record-breaking $116,000 for 10 days of appearances at the Texas State Fair but refused it for a rest. The couple received some 30,000 letters from fans urging them, for sentimental reasons, not to sell their San Fernando Valley home when it was announced they were moving to Beverly Hills during their movie work on The Long, Long Trail. They didn't; move was temporary only, for nearness to film studios.

To snare your TV attention this coming year, Hollywood is expending an all-time peak in money and man-power. All three networks are competing for top creative and acting talent. GEORGE JESSEL's ABC as well as NBC are telefilm-minded but CBS is developing live shows mainly. But latter's chieftain here, HARRY ACKERMAN, has hired prominent filmites, such as Director EDDIE BUZZELL, in preparation for an eventual move to filming.

Summer schedule of This Is Your Life will include ROY ROGERS, BILLY CLEVINGER, JOAN CAULFIELD, DINAH SHORE, ROCK HUDSON, NADIA SCARPITA, FIFI D'ORSAY, VIRGINIA MARSHUDE, SARA BERNER, MRS. WALTER KOHNER, DON DeFORE, FRAN ALLISON and ED WYNN. July 18 Saturday Night Review will feature the zany SLATE BROTHERS.
Chicago Teletype

TV's Week: The mystery of the Super Circus pixie has finally been solved. After plaguing clowns Clifty and Nicky for the past few months, the engaging little imp has been signed for the regular lineup, replacing Bardy Patton as Scampy. Bardy, who has played the role since 1949 is retiring at the age of 13. The new Scampy is nine-year-old Sandy Dobritch, son of two circus aerialists.

Ed Sullivan claims he'll abandon his premieres of Hollywood movies on Toast of the Town. Reason: Over 50 percent of the show's fan mail contains complaints about the movies and requests for more live talent.

Arthur Godfrey has postponed his scheduled return to TV until at least August 1. Medics forbid him to stand on his leg for more than three or four minutes at a time. Arthas's still in pain from a muscular reaction to his hip operation.

Flower Fever: TV newscaster John Cameron Swayze is cultivating a small flower bed at his country home—just to raise those snappy boutonnieres.

Advance Tips on Shows: Pentagon Confidential, a new true-to-life crime series based on army records, bows on the video lanes Aug. 6, replacing My Little Margie.

Anyone Can Win joins the rush of audience participation quizzes this summer. Show replaces City Hospital on alternate Tuesdays beginning July 14. City Hospital moves over to the alternate Thursday slot vacated by I've Got A Secret.

Shows in the Works: Barry Fitzgerald due to star in a TV series concerning adventures of a parish priest. Martha Wright, of South Pacific fame, is being groomed for her own TV musical stanza.

On deck: A new telefilm series titled Tandem, based on Collier's short short stories. Globe-trotting reporter Quentin Reynolds will occupy the host's seat. Joe Palooka plans to take the TV plunge with a half-hour film series in the fall.

Down with Don

Why bother to call Eddie Fisher’s show his own when we have to see so much of Don Ameche with his silly smile? We would like to see more of Eddie and less of Don. Why doesn’t Ameche just take over the show? I am sure then it would be a flop!—N. D. B., Chicago, Ill.

A Wonderful Guy

This Is Your Life a couple of weeks ago was one of the most heartwarming stories I have ever seen. It was about time someone paid respects to one of the most wonderful guys in the world: Pat O’Brien.—Josephine Moryl, La Porte, Ind. (You’re right, like the Braves, Pat is the pride of Milwaukee. —Ed.)

Smoke Gets in Her Hair

I would like to know why Fran Coughlin of Down You Go has to have a cigarette in his hand all through the program. I bet the audience can’t smoke in the auditorium. If he could see how he looks, he wouldn’t do it. He certainly doesn’t help fire prevention, does he? —Adeline Cepek, Cicero, Ill.

Teen—Not Ten

In your Channel Chatter column (June 12 issue) you mentioned the Ken Nordine fan club. That was fine, but you also said we were 10-year-olds. We sort of resent that, for we are all teen-agers.—Nancy Leidolf (President, Ken Nordine Fan Club), Chicago. (Our humble apologies.—Ed.)

Likes That Godfrey Girl

I agree that Janette Davis is above reproach. Some people are just envious. Also will someone please tell Liberace to allow others to do his announcing, and stick strictly to playing the piano.—Mrs. Hugh Baletto, Chicago.

New Twist

I think that Fran Allison’s “Lilt” commercials are just wonderful. In fact, I hate to have them interrupted by the regular program. That gal could sell anything.—C. B., Benton Harbor, Mich. (Maybe it’s her smile that’s so persuasive.—Ed.)

Unwise Wit?

Chub McCarthy... I enjoy your column very much but you are sometimes even more sarcastic than Tom Duggan, and look what happened to him.—Sue Stabel, Kenosha, Wisc. (Guess it’s the Irish temperament.—Ed.)

Too Much Gab?

Why must Robert Q. Lewis talk so much? I think most of us would like to hear more of the singers. The talent doesn’t get a chance on Godfrey’s morning program. The commercials even get cheated because he never keeps quiet.—E. A. Packer, Chicago.

An Old Trouper

Is Red Buttons an old vaudevillian or, should I say, a young vaudevillian? As an entertainer, he is tops.—J. M. Young, Racine, Wisc. (Yes, Red Buttons, born Aaron Chwatt 34 years ago, spent years in vaudeville and even burlesque, Minsky’s, that is.—Ed.)
ONLY the name has been changed. Boys' baseball is back again on TV, with the same spirited play and all-out determination to win being shown by the youngsters who are now performing in and as the Boys' Major League. They formerly competed in the Major Little League but now, following a hassle that began last year over regulations, the local organization has broken with the national association of Little Leagues. The break, however, has had no effect on the boys' enthusiasm for baseball or the fans' enthusiasm for the boys.

The popular telecasts will again originate from Thillens Stadium, Devon & Kedzie, in Chicago, where the games are played nightly. One game each week gets the video treatment. With ace sportscaster Jack Brickhouse at the mike, the lively contests are carried on WGN-TV Mondays from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Easy-To-Follow

Viewers gave the new Lilliputian brand of baseball a warm reception when it debuted locally on TV last year. And small wonder. These games are exciting, easy-to-follow and entertaining all the way. It's fascinating to watch the kids expend such ferocious energies so wholesomely.

The natural talents these boys possess are brought to sharp focus by expert coaching on the part of the BML staff. Former big-leaguers and sport stars like Bill Biebel, noted baseball figure, "Chris" Kristufek, University of Illinois athletic director, and Otto Denning, a 20-year veteran of the majors, can take the rawest young rookie and shape him into a promising athlete.

Besides being grounded in baseball fundamentals, the youngsters are trained in hygiene, diet and manners. A contract binds them to good behavior, on and off the field.

Tournament Ends Season

From over 10,000 lads who try out in the spring, 240 lucky youths are chosen.
Is Back!

These boys are then assigned (according to age and ability) to the six teams in the Farm Club; the six in the Boys' Major League—the Cubs, White Sox, Indians, Phillies, Cardinals and Yankees; or the four squads that comprise the older Pony League. At season's end, the top ballplayers from the Boys' Major League and similar leagues throughout the Chicago area will battle in an all-star invitational tournament at Thillens Stadium. Trophies will then be awarded to the champion team and the runner-up.

Team rosters throughout the Thillens league family smack of the United Nations, listing such names as Schwartz, O'Laughlin, Goldberg and Greco. True teamwork prevails on the diamond, and all lads show plenty of the hustle and bustle that makes for good baseball. The camera, which does a good job of covering the action, proves the boys are adept at the most intricate hitting and fielding maneuvers. And they make quite a sight as they scamper about the bases in their smart duds which are—like the proportions of the field itself—cut and tailored to size.

Northside businessman, Mel Thillens, as president writes the check for all operations of the Boys' Major League. Purchases are by carload lots—240 uniforms, 1,000 balls, 24 dozen bats, etc. Thillens draws no gate revenues either. Admission is free to the stadium, a fact that may pose a threat to television. After all, park patrons can see the games first-hand—without commercials!
A Designer’s View:

Video Through a Needle’s Eye

Transformation: Carmi’s basic dress takes on new airs with a black polka-dot apron.

GEORGIANA JORDAN, a fashion designer by profession, was busily building a reputation as Schiaparelli of the suburbs when a newfangled contraption called TV caught her eye.

A wonderful medium for costume designing, she concluded, and with the ardent zeal typical of her Italian ancestry, she began cutting, basting and sewing. She had little trouble finding the proper costume patterns—Georgiana’s mind was brimming with plans.

First subject was Carmelita Pope. A natural choice. Georgiana was, after all, a friend of Carmi’s mother and the two women belonged to the same Italian Woman’s Club. After noting Carmi’s TV personality on “Down You Go,” the little dressmaker fashioned six original costumes for Miss Pope to wear on the show. With cunning strategy, she sent them over for Carmelita’s approval. Result: Carmi accepted them all and became a steady customer.

The tell-a-woman grapevine brought Carmi’s partner, Toni Gilman, into the Jordan fold. And finally the girls’ buzzing in WGN-TV corridors piqued the curiosity of the station’s culinary expert, Alida Drake, sending her out to the Oak Park shop.

Georgiana works on the theory that TV gowns should match theater costumes in perfect workmanship. Such techniques as fitting of linings, boning and strength of material are considered as carefully as the appearance of the finished product.

Her basic patterns are cut from lightweight workable materials in colors to match each personality. Carmi’s is a combination of lavender, beige and navy blue. Toni’s is periwinkle blue, and Alida Drake’s is mint green to blend with her red hair. The colored patterns aid Georgiana in matching a gown to the personality—without tiresome fittings.

Georgiana’s background is appropriately linked to show biz. A former dancer in New York, she picked up extra pennies through her backstage job—designing practice clothes and costumes for her dancing girl associates. Some 17 years ago she migrated to Chicago, appearing in various stage revues and night club spots locally. Later she joined the staff of WCFL as a children’s story teller on the “Happiness Ahead” series. Her only TV appearance has been as a guest on Don McNeill’s former television show.

Georgiana, a fluttery brunette with a marathon talking technique, is married to park district policeman Carmen De Fily who picked her up some 12 years ago on a speeding charge. She not only talked herself out of a ticket, but into a marriage contract.

Georgiana is still one of the Lilliputians in TV costuming circles. But she may set a precedent as one of the pioneer fashion designers to take advantage of TV’s allied lucrative fields. So far it’s been a gamble. But with Carmelita and Toni as her “front women, even Schiaparelli and Ceil Chapman would agree Georgiana has a sure thing.
DID you know that most female TV viewers think that the male TV stars are sartorially not so hot?

This surprising intelligence I garnered from reading the results of a recent nationwide survey conducted by Eagle Clothes, a men’s clothing outfitter.

“If Mrs. Sullivan dressed Ed, he’d stop wearing those unflattering double-breasted suits,” was one lady’s comment in the poll. Another criticized Mrs. Arthur Godfrey for not making Arthur refrain from wearing suits with a “slept-in” look.

Two thirds of the women polled rated male TV stars as only “fair” to downright “poor” dressers.

The poll was anonymous, so the women pulled no punches. One criticized Bob Hope for “wearing clothes as if he were proud of his tummy.” Another thought Wally Cox should change from “his one baggy suit.” (Come, now! Mr. Peepers is scarcely supposed to be a fashion plate.) Another said she was “sick and tired of Walter Greaza’s chalk-stripe suits.

But all was not negative. The girls had kind words for Perry Como and his “perfect grooming” and “air of casual but neat comfort.” And John Cameron Swayze was called “the Adolphe Menjou of TV.” (But nowadays isn’t Adolphe Menjou the Adolphe Menjou of TV?)

Personally, I’ll have to admit that I’ve never paid too much attention to the clothing of television’s male stars. With one definite exception, though. That’s Dave Garroway, the darling man. He always looks beautifully dressed. And so early in the morning!

SPORTSCAST
by ED PAZDUR

WHEN you’re sweltering in Chicago’s hot, humid weather—it’s hard to believe that those astonishing Black Hawks will be skating on Stadium ice in just three short months!... For Bill Tobin, the jovial Black Hawk prexy, it’s three months too long! In anticipation of another bustling and profitable year, Tobin revealed some changes in store for the coming season.

“We hope to televise almost all 35 home games this fall,” he said. “I’ve informed Ken Carpenter and Jack Page of Sidney J. Page Productions who handles our telecasts, that he must televise all games or none!”

A check with S. J. Page Productions indicated HFC will renew its option to televise all 18 Sunday night home games. Two other sponsors are dickering to pick up the tab for the remaining Friday night tilts. There will be no matinees or Thursday night games.

TV overtures were made to DePaul University on the possibility of televising home basketball games directly from its aging Uptown Gymnasium... DePaul’s Chicago Stadium doubleheaders were ignored because of Art Morse’s persistently hard-headed policy against live television... Arthur Folz, promoter of Soldier Field Stock Car Racing and president of the Chicago Auto Racing Association, is also the publisher of The San Fernando Sun in California.

Inflation: Effective Sept. 15, all main bout fighters on network telecasts will receive a minimum purse of $4,000, according to the International Boxing Guild. The managerial group also got slight increases for preliminary fighters. These rates will apply to all telecasts seen 65 miles or more beyond the arena. TV sportscasters reportedly receive $1,250 per main event televised.

The ISC and Jim Norris have been contracted by Pabst to continue their Wednesday night fights uninterrupted through the summer. The summer slugfests will originate mostly from Chicago, New York, Milwaukee and Cleveland.

Tommy Connolly, 82-year-old American League umpire-in-chief, is receiving deserved congratulations from his many friends in baseball. The little arbiter, now in his 60th year in organized baseball, received from the two major league presidents a gold lifetime pass for his meritorious service to baseball.

Join Bob Drews and Ed Pazdur every Sunday night, WBBM-TV, 10 p. m., for exciting HFC stock car racing direct from Soldier Field.
Boys and girls, here’s the picture of Trigger that was once promised—with, of course, Roy Rogers, for good measure. Trigger’s a beautiful Palomino and knows a lot of tricks which he’s used to rescue Roy from many tight scrapes in their Western movies. You can see these exciting films every Sunday on channel 5 at 5 p.m.

THIS WEEK’S CONTEST: Here’s the answer to our recent contest—the Western states are: Ariz., Calif., Colo., Ida., Nev., N. Mex., Okla., Ore., Tex., Utah, Wash., Wyo. AND WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS

Return: It's been a year since the Goldbergs have been off the living room screen. To bring things up-to-date. They still live in apartment 3-B, 1030 East Tremont Avenue in the Bronx. The living room is 12x14, has wall-to-wall carpeting and a double exposure. There is a spinet piano and a couch with foam rubber cushions. There is a club chair and a desk. The summer drapes are up. They're paying $78.00 rent. They gave the 15% increase and the landlord will "maybe paint when the two years are up."

Molly — Gert-rude Berg: Since last year she's been on a diet. She's counting calories. She's continuing at night school and expects to graduate in 1956.

Jake—Robert H. Harris: Jake's weight is the same. The increase in the subway fare doesn't bother him because he just joined a car pool. Molly says, "He has no new interests. His interest is still me."

Uncle David—Eli Mintz: He says he's "still the also" of the family. His son Solly—the-doctor just put air conditioning in the office.

Rosalie—Arlene McQuade: She's quite boy-conscious. Now interested in psychology. According to Molly, "every word you say to her has eighteen meanings. She wants to know all my dreams."

Rest of the family: Sammy is in the Army in Pennsylvania. Elka may move from Passaic to the Bronx. Mrs. Bloom will be seen on the show.

Present Status: Usually the Goldbergs go away for the summer, but this year with Sammy in the Army and Rosalie wanting to stay in the city they decided to stay home.

Channel Chatter

TV People: Chicagoland lost one of its most beloved disk jockeys when Norman Ross died last week. The fun-loving record spinner enjoyed one of the most successful reigns (18 years) among radio’s early-birds and even set the pace for TV record shows with his own stanza back in 1951. TV Guide joins Chicagoans in mourning the passing of Uncle Normie, the disk jockey who spun his own personality into a record spot in Chicago’s Hit Parade.

Laugh Time’s Angel Casey has a new interest: promoting art among the moppets. Angel is staging a children’s painting and drawing contest (deadline, July 12) on her afternoon WBKB show. The junior set’s work will be reviewed by a jury from Chicago’s Art Institute, then judged by newspaper art critics. Winner will receive an Art Institute scholarship.

Howard Miller is waging a TV offensive now that he’s taken over command of the radio dial. In addition to his new WBKB stanza (10 p.m. Tuesdays, starting July 7), Howard is shifting his Friday night disk jockey show from WGN-TV to WNBQ. Debut date: July 10.

Vacation-itis: Burr Tillstrom is taking his parents on a European tour this summer. Francois Pope takes off on a fishing trip while his sons take over Creative Cookery.

It’s Official: Starting Sunday (July 5), WBBM-TV changes from channel 4 to channel 2. Milwaukee’s WTMJ-TV takes over the 4 spot July 11.

7 BOXING BOUTS—Calif.
Eddie Chavez vs. Henry Davis, lightweight.

JIMMY POWERS SAYS: Chavez is rated 7th. Fights: 54. Won: 44. Lost: 7. Draws: 3. K.O.'s: 12. Davis is rated 9th. Fights: 61. Won 46. Lost: 10. Draws: 5. K.O.'s: 16. This all-important lightweight bout is the first showing of this fight series across the country from West to East. Judging by their recent performance and their showings against Paddy DeMarco in New York, I favor Davis. Both youngsters are good boxers with light socks in either mitt. They have boxed the top men in their division, Chavez gaining a victory over the lightweight champion James Carter, and Davis winning over Johnny Gonzales.

THE BEST

by JACK MABLEY

By now everyone has said there's nothing wrong with television that $500,000 per show won't cure—so I won't say it. Anyway, I'll bet you could have cut the expenditure on the Ford Show down to a measly $150,000 and still have had the greatest two-hour hunk of entertainment ever seen on the air.

Ignoring what the critics said about the Ford Show, and just taking the comment of neighbors, people at nearby desks and other amateur viewers, it can be safely said that the Ford Show was the best television program ever put on.

With that capsule comment out of the way, what did we learn about television from this expensive enterprise?

No Commercial

For one, there's no commercial like no commercial. There wasn't a single sales pitch in the whole two hours, and yet millions of people were saying "Ford" that night and the following couple of days in a most complimentary manner. I think the show sold cars.

The program was put in the hands of a fine Broadway showman, Leland Hayward, who hired himself the best technical man he could find to take care of the details of translating his ideas into television. Hayward concentrated on the show itself.

Possibly you noticed how little of that $500,000 was spent on scenery. Or more likely you didn't notice it. When Marian Anderson or Mary Martin or Ethel Merman performed in front of the intelligently directed camera, there was no need for scenery.

A television pattern in the past has been that if you have $1,000 to spend, use it something like this: $450 for a performer, $450 for scenery and props, and $100 for a writer.

Mr. Hayward, a novice in television who doesn't know anything except how to stage great entertainment, cut up his $1,000 about 60 per cent for talent and 40 per cent for writers. I'd judge that from the show.

The terrific pacing and contrast of the Ford Show were the finest I've ever seen on television. The two hours passed faster than most half-hours of TV entertainment.

The lack of commercials helped, of course. But the individual segments moved so fast you couldn't get tired of any single one. If Edward R. Murrow is too stuffy for you, as he is for me, he'd be gone after a minute or two. If Wally Cox or Kukla and Ollie were on too short a time, you needed merely to wait, because they'd come back.

The segments that did run—the wonderful ballets and the Martin-Merman duet—were sure-fire pieces of showmanship that could only leave you wanting more.

Miss Martin's demonstration of fashions through the years was one of the classics of television comedy.

Rare Appearances

But the buildup for Miss Martin's huge success, and those of Miss Merman and Miss Anderson starts with their absence from television in past years. They've made rare appearances. They are still fresh in TV. If we had seen Miss Martin every Saturday night on Show of Shows, or Miss Merman as a regular star on the Comedy Hour, whatever they did on the Ford Show would have seemed tired.

You'd like to think that from the tremendous success of the Ford Show the TV industry would learn some lessons. That is, the value of top writing, of simplicity, and of pacing; the need for fresh talent on the air; the importance of hiring a veteran showman, and the merit of a little audacity in planning.

The Ford Show gave the masses quality entertainment, and we masses loved it. The benefits of the program may be felt in our living rooms for years to come.

SONGS, SPORTS MARK
NEW SHOWS ON WMAQ
by WM. A. QUE

OH GALS! THE "OLD BLACK MAGIC" MAN is back. Crooner Tony Martin returns to radio on a regular basis tonight (Sunday) with his own show over WMAQ at 7:00 p.m.

After a long absence from the airplanes during which he made his newest successes in motion pictures, night clubs and occasional guest shots on television shows, Tony takes on radio as the star of this new, every-Sunday-night RCA Victor Show over NBC. Naturally it will be a song-and-music show, and you can look forward to hearing the ballads that Tony sings so well. For extra enjoyment, well known RCA Victor recording artists will pay visits to provide their own particular brand of melody-making.

If you're at the beach, at home, out for a drive... anywhere at all, be sure to set your radio dial to 670 tonight for the new Tony Martin Show.

Beginning tomorrow a new sports program bows on WMAQ at 6:15 p.m. Sponsored by the Sportsman's and Maywood Park Harness Tracks, The Sports Final will be a Monday through Friday feature handled by sports announcer Clure Mosher. The early evening sports spot will cover all the day's scores in baseball, golf, and all sports as well as news about what's coming up on the sports scene.

Mosher, who makes the race calls at Maywood Park, also announces WMAQ's presentation of Harness Racing from Maywood Park on Saturday nights at 10:15 p.m.

IN THE CAST

Jack Russell; he would rather be with the Met.

JACK RUSSELL, featured vocalist on Your Show of Shows, has his sights trained on becoming a Metropolitan Opera star some day.

With a big, booming and highly-trained baritone voice, Jack is equally adept at singing anything from western ballads to grand opera. Because of this, he has established himself as TV’s “soup to nuts” vocalist. “I love to sing,” Jack says, “so I volunteer to do any type of song on the show. But I’d rather sing opera and the classics.”

Jack has never auditioned for the Metropolitan, but his entire career has been slanted in that direction. Born Russell John Kelly 33 years ago in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., he was raised in Palm Beach, Fla. He studied with the late Madam Louise Homer, Metropolitan Opera diva.

He broke into show business with chorus jobs in four Broadway musicals, finally gaining featured billing in Alive and Kicking. During the season of 1947-48 he toured with The Chocolate Soldier. Then, still ready to sing for his supper, Jack took a summer job in 1949 on the social staff at Tamiment, Pa. This same summer resort spawned such stars as Imogene Coca and Danny Kaye. There he caught the eye and ear of Max Liebman, producer-director of Your Show of Shows, who signed him for TV.

If and when he breaks into the Metropolitan, Jack expects to find his work far less hectic than TV. Once, garbed in French Revolution finery, he did a scene from Manon on Show of Shows just before the half-hour station break. Immediately after station identification, he was to appear in a dance sequence dressed as a cowboy. He prides himself on being a quick-change artist but rushed so to switch costumes that time that he pulled a muscle in his back and was barely able to continue.

With opera still his goal, Jack won a featured role this spring in the New York City Center’s production of Die Fledermaus. On one Saturday, he did a matinee performance of the opera and then rushed to his TV studio for Your Show of Shows that night. This summer, for the second successive year, he’ll star in Michael Todd’s production of A Night in Venice at the Jones Beach (N. Y.) outdoor stadium.

But come fall and Jack will be back with Your Show of Shows, again singing arias with Marguerite Piazza, popular tunes with Judy Johnson and just about everything else Liebman asks him to do.
THE SONG pluggers of Tin Pan Alley are colorful guys who pound the New York sidewalks everyday with new, saleable tunes under their arms and an age-old sales pitch in their repertoire. They’re the backbone of the recording industry, these vets, for through them the potentially great songs get their first audiences.

Each year the pluggers, with a kind of Runyon-esque sentimentality, throw a shindig in honor of their favorite customer. They call it simply “The Annual Perry Como Golf Tournament.” This Broadway kind of hard-boiled love—a rare commodity—has nothing to do with how many platters Perry will cut next month. It’s just the best way the music men know of saluting someone who is known to all he meets as “Mr. Nice Guy.”

Press Agent’s Dismay

To the dismay of his press agent, pestered by columnists for “hot” news items about him, Perry Como is as normal as Oscar Hammerstein’s blueberry pie. He’s a family man who gets a big boot out of playing with his kids or occasionally wheeling a shopping cart in the super market on a Saturday. He’s nuts about his wife, Roselle, and doesn’t give a fig for night clubbing or publicity stunts. Unless there’s a blizzard blowing you’re likely to find him on the golf course at odd hours of the day, 12 months a year, shooting in the 70’s.

Como’s trademark, of course, is his yawning casualness about everything—a la Crosby. He couldn’t cultivate an ulcer if his life hinged on it. After eight years with the same sponsor they are still waiting for him to blow his top for the first time. This casualness is contagious, too. The cast of the Como show—the Fontane Sisters, who came from Bergen, N. J., Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra, announcer Dick Stark, the director, and crew—go through their rehearsal period with none of the usual TV tension.

He Ambles into Studio

About three hours before show time, Perry nonchalantly ambles into the CBS studio whistling or humming a tune like any other employed, contented person often does. At the stage entrance he’s invariably greeted by a teen-aged contingent of the Perry Como Fan Club, all of whom sigh while he pens his autograph.

Perry treats his fan clubbers as if they were his sponsors. But before the show he makes one stipulation: no shrieking, yelling or howling and if you must swoon, do it quietly. “If there is shrieking during one of the numbers,” explains Perry, “we invariably get 50 or so phone calls from very nice people who say they miss some of the lyrics and why must we have an audience at all. I tell the kids—God bless ‘em—to get the yelling out of their system before show time, but sometimes they just forget.”

There’s plenty of tomfoolery during a Como rehearsal. Running through Night and Day, a song he would know in his sleep, Perry gets whimsical and sings the lyrics in the different voices of a ham baritone, a quaver-your-voiced Sinatra and a deep-throated Vaughn Monroe. He'll hum or whistle and never does get around to singing the song straight until he is on the air.

When youngsters like Eddie Fisher or Julius LaRosa come up with a hit record, it's almost a cinch they'll appear on the Como show to sing along side the crooners' crooner. There's nothing Perry likes more than a smash record hit—no matter who makes it. "But you're crazy," the boys-in-the-know insist. "This singing racket is the most competitive business in the world and you invite these baritones to share the same mike with you. You're nuts!"

Perry doesn't buy that argument, though. "If I have to start worrying about whether my position is secure or not, I'd just better go back to the barber chair in Canonsburg (Pa.)." (This barber business, incidentally, was not dreamed up by some canny press agent; Perry used to make well over a $100 a week barbering.)

Just Like Brother Elks

Actually, Como has more friends among his so-called competition than all the crooners extant. Fellows like Crosby, Sinatra, Frankie Laine, Don Cherry, Fisher and Don Cornell are numbered among his closest buddies. Far from the Hatfield-McCoy relationship the gossip columnists would relish, Como and other crooners are as compatible as a bunch of brother Elks.

His friendship with the Great Groaner Bing wasn't an immediate one. As a fledgling crooner, Perry idolized Crosby. He also realized that to become recognized he would have to copy Bing's style. Thus the casual approach was born. Yet as the name Como became a bigger and brighter one he was never able to get very close to Crosby, although they had met a couple of times. Bing, a master at the subtle brush-off, treated Perry like any number of fellows to whom he'd be introduced.

A few years ago, Crosby, Arthur Godfrey and Perry found themselves in Chicago on the same stage. They were all working for Chesterfield at the time and the event was a tobacco distributors' convention. Perry expressed to the crowd the part Crosby played in his career. "Whatever success I have," he said, "I owe to Crosby. I copied his style, it's made me a good living and I'll always be grateful."

The two have been the closest of friends since.

Up in Sands Point, Long Island, where the Comos have a comfortable 14-room house, complete with a recreation room and an outdoor grill for steaks, Perry finds his real sanctuary. He gets a lot of time to spend with his wife and children (Ronnie, 13; David, 7; and Terri, 5) simply because he insists on it.

The 40-year-old Como sells about 4,000,000 records annually, tops in his field. At a time when every recording artist is claiming to have hit the charmed million mark for some disk or other (most of the claims are pure bunk), he has sailed over a million seven times in his career.

Pierino Como, this unspectacular, well adjusted baritone with an effortless personality has seemed to have found that elusive general appeal. Elderly women want to mother him, bobby soxers treat him as if he were the star quarterback on their college eleven and men admire the guy because he sings 'em straight. Even the show world cynics—those jaundice-eyed fellows—admit the man is in a league by himself.

"Mr. Nice Guy?" What else?
IF A PRIZE were ever awarded to the TV program showing the steadiest improvement, TV Playhouse indisputably would walk off with the honors. One of the oldest hour-long dramatic series on the air, Playhouse has been consistently good during the last year, with only an occasional clinker marring its record.

Fred Coe, the program’s producer, is one of the outspoken exponents of live, as against filmed, TV drama. His success with Playhouse is his best argument. Whether intentional or not, the show invariably contains a certain excitement and “opening night” atmosphere even if the play itself turns out to be dull. This feeling, which the actors seem to project to viewers, is seldom duplicated in current TV film ventures.

It’s difficult to pinpoint the type of dramatic fare which Playhouse presents best. In attempting a comedy show, the series may come up with a plodding, pedestrian script to which even the most skillful actors cannot impart much life. Yet, on its next try at comedy, the program may present an excellent farce capable of generating as many laughs as the best situation comedy series. But for comedy, melodrama, romance or any other type of drama, Playhouse consistently boasts a high batting average.

With his own “stable” of six or seven writers who devote their entire TV output to Playhouse, Coe has been able to present many original plays during the last few years. This has also permitted him to assign his writers to specific stories. On the latter score, the show has presented some excellent biographical dramas on famous historical personalities.

Coe has had the same two directors (Delbert Mann and Gordon Duff), as well as the same production crew virtually since the show went on the air. This undoubtedly contributes to the overall quality, since the group has learned to function together as a cohesive team. As with other TV dramatic programs, different actors are used each week. Many of the top stars from both Broadway and TV appear often on Playhouse.

The sets, costumes, lighting and other production trappings are among the best on TV. Playhouse continues through the summer with an emphasis on lighter fare. It should be a potent lure to viewers to remain indoors on warm Sunday evenings.
CHICAGO TV producers have established a reputation for their skill and imagination in creating easy-to-watch and easy-to-listen-to programs. The Music Show (DuMont) will help further that reputation. It's a skillfully relaxed half-hour melange of music and song, which will reward any viewer tuning in with one of the high spots of summer TV.

The show is so simply done that it's surprising no other producer or network thought of the idea previously. (DuMont had another version of the program on the air last summer.) But that simplicity, so readily discernible to the eye and ear, reflects the skill and technical knowledge incorporated into the show by its producers. Their lighting and camera work, among the best on TV, turn the trick.

Featured in the cast are four youthful and personable singers—Jackie Van and Mike Douglas handling the more popular tunes and Eleanor Warner and Henri Noel doing the light classics and operetta. They perform in front of a 34-piece orchestra conducted by Robert Trendler, which provides lush musical backgrounds. The songs are sung minus all the frills and overly-arranged orchestrations which seem to have become the musical mode recently.

There are no sets or props or even dancing girls to detract from the music. A thin, transparent curtain is lowered between the vocalists and orchestra from time to time, which helps to shift the mood of the show. The singers, individually excellent, merely stand up and sing, either solo or in duet. They fortunately steer clear of the current Hit Parade tunes, concentrating on the best-known songs from Broadway musicals, on the old standards, and some from popular operettas.

The Music Show provides a stimulating half-hour, musically and visually.
TV in the news

TELEVISION came to the rescue of many stricken families in the recent disastrous tornados in the Midwest and New England. Remaining on the air 'way into the night, TV stations handled Red Cross appeals, police bulletins and announcements on emergency transportation and temporary housing.

A mountain climbing expedition will be recorded for NBC on film and tape for TV viewing later in the year. 'Stars' of the production will be an American group who are readying an attack on "K-2", second highest mountain (28,250 feet) in Pakistan's Karakoran range. The highest, Everest, towers more than 29,000 ft.

Iowa State College is currently presenting a six-week TV class in German. Called "Eins Zwei Drei", the program is aimed at children in the 10 to 12-year-old group and catches their interest by means of jingles, rhymes and demonstrations.

There are 163 communities wired for community television antennas. The system is feasible where towns are isolated or in mountainous regions, and an elaborate "single" antenna will suffice.

Getting ready for its entry in TV color programming, NBC has stipulated that all staff members, assigned to the new division, must take a color perception test. Decree was issued by Sylvester L. Weaver, vice president of the network's board of directors.

Woodbury College, recently conducting a television survey in the Los Angeles area, discovered that 85 per cent of their respondents approve educational courses on TV. Among the 3,000 set owners covered by the census, favorite subjects would be: history, psychology, music, foreign languages, home economics and art. Many indicated they would be willing to pay for the courses if subscription TV were in effect.

FINE TUNING

LEGAL fight threatened over "Space Ranger" title. Out with your atomic ray guns, men, and let's settle this.

Man hasn't yet conquered space, and somebody already is claiming the copyright.

One outfit was called Rocky Jones, Space Ranger when along came Rocky Starr, Space Ranger. This is quite a coincidence, even for 2400 A.D. When these boys picked titles, they had Rocky's in their heads. The suit may even involve those old-timers, Rocky Road and Rocky Mountains.

It seems that each of the Space Rangers wants to be the Lone Ranger.

With 80 billion miles of space, you'd think there would be room for two Rangers. Now each of these boys is claiming that the other one is a fly-by-night. One or the other Rocky is going to lose out to that well-known character, Pat. Pending.

The court now has to decide which Man of the Future has a future.

There's an old rule covering this. Let him who is without sin cast the first Rocky.

Big Payoff Contestants Couldn’t

Bess Myerson: she’s wearing one of the mink coats given away on the Big Payoff show.

The Big Payoff has become TV's biggest payoff show. Despite the fact that the payoff questions posed to contestants on the program would stump most college professors, there have been a surprising number of guests who hit the jackpot. Now in its second year on the air, the program has given away more than $2,000,000 in mink coats, automobiles and all expense-paid tours.

Bess Myerson, co-star with Randy Merriman (whose picture is part of question mark on next page) on Big Payoff, has been compiling a list of missed payoff questions with which she tries to stump her friends at parties. Randy, of course, asks the questions on the show. But if you attended a party with Bess, here’s the type of question she might ask you.

Mary Stewart Offers Suggestions on Hat Problem

When so many women took to going without hats, they denied themselves a great morale-builder. Since time immemorial a new hat has been the tonic for female megrims.

In this respect, Mary Stewart, who plays Joanne in Search for Tomorrow, is not modern. She likes hats.

It's Mary's theory that a becoming hat is virtually ageless. All you have to do is change the trimmings from year to year. This does not mean that Mary has only one hat. She has a whole stable of them. Her system works like this. She has a basic hat made by an expert milliner. Then each season she has a copy made.

She expects five seasons' wear out of each hat. Comes a new season, Mary divests her hats of their last year's trimmings.

There are any number of ways she may ring changes and the result is always a fresh new supply of hats for all occasions.

Last year's hat trim of violets may be replaced with a sprinkling of sequins or rhinestone buttons—bought at an accessories counter in the department store. The red feathers may be changed this year for blue or green, or whatever shade best matches or blends with your favorite costume.

There's still an easier way to get the benefit of the flattery hats afford without much expense or work. A wisp of veiling, some grosgrain or velvet ribbon, a few flowers—and you have a creation suitable for evenings at the theater or night club. Mary keeps a supply of flowers on hand and chooses those to go with the particular costume she will be wearing. She adjusts the flowers with bobby pins. The veil and flowers serve the double purpose of keeping a coiffure in place, leaving you free to have fun without worrying about how you look.

Answers to Big Payoff Questions

How Remarkable Can You Get?

REFERENCE was made a week ago to the hawk-eyed commentators on fights who can sit back in the remote shadows of the mezzanine and announce that a boxer’s eyes are glassy. These gentlemen have remarkable vision, yet they are not half so discerning as the gentlemen who describe baseball games for us.

The gentlemen who describe baseball games tell us a hundred times a day that the pitch, merely a blur on our screen, was a fast ball outside, a curve ball that caught the corner, a knuckle-ball, a screwball, a sinker (or downer), a change-up, a fork-ball, a palm-ball or a slider.

Had these lads been operating in the day when pitchers threw the emery-ball, the shine-ball, the mud-ball and the spit-ball, they would have identified them just as readily.

As an exercise in keen observation and meticulous reporting, this is pretty good. It borders on the miraculous when you discover that there are many ball players not at all sure that there is such a pitch as the “slider.”

Time and again trained professionals stand at the plate, watch the ball from the instant it leaves the pitcher’s hand, and cannot tell what sort of pitch it was. Yet up in a booth hung under the grandstand roof, maybe 200 feet from the plate, some ringtailed genius recognizes the pitch as a slider that broke about two inches.

They are absolutely wonderful, these eagles of the air. They are also absolute fakes.

The slogan of sports reporting on radio was, “If they can hear this, they’re not watching, and what they can’t see won’t hurt ‘em.” With the advent of television, it was thought the boys would have to confine themselves to the truth. This turned out to be wild optimism.

The television camera, good as it is, still can’t see a pitch as well as the batter can, or, for that matter, as well as the man sitting in a grandstand seat. And the man in a grandstand seat couldn’t recognize a slider or a knuckler or a screwball if it hit him.

Time and again it happens that Mickey Mantle is asked, “What was that ball you hit (or missed) in the seventh inning?” He replies, as honestly as he is able, “A fast ball, belt high and a little inside.” At the same time somebody else is asking the pitcher what he threw to Mantle in the seventh. “A curve,” he answers.

They aren’t sure, but the man under the roof is. He declared it was a screwball which broke across the knees.

It doesn’t take long for the man in the stands to realize that the man up under the roof is making it up. Once he has learned that, he ceases to believe that the man upstairs is trying to tell the truth. Then, he begins to wonder whether he can believe anything the man says. Even the score.
